DETAILED ACTION

Applicant's arguments filed 6/30/08 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. See argument below. Previous rejections/issues not discussed below have been withdrawn..

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 13,21,27,28,47,50,57,58,74 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ruegg et al (US 6180563; 1/30/01).

Ruegg teaches a method for controlling weeds in crops including cotton comprising applying to the crop a composition comprising trifloxysulfuron plus at least one compound including glyphosate, glufosinate, sethoxydim, and clethodim. See abstract, column 1 line 5 – column 6 line 35, column 11 line 32 – column 12 line 21. Ruegg does not teach or suggest an explicit method or composition for controlling weed in cotton comprising applying to cotton a composition comprising glyphosate or glufosinate and metolachlor, pyriithobac, sethoxydim, and/or clethodim. However, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to make instant invention comprising trifloxysulfuron plus glyphosate or glufosinate plus metolachlor, pyriithobac, sethoxydim, and/or clethodim. One would have been motivated to do this because Ruegg suggests the combination of ingredients and the herbicidal effectiveness of the combination would have been broaden as a result of the combination. Applicant provides unexpected results for the above combination of metolachlor or pyriithobac plus glufosinate as shown on pages 31-35 of the specification. The invention comprising combinations of glufosinate plus metolachlor or pyriithobac are allowable .

Response to Applicants' Argument

The Ruegg reference does not recognize a benefit outside of a combination with trifloxysulfuron and the Ruegg reference would not serve as a blue print for the instant invention. The Examiner argues that the instant invention employs "comprising" language, which allows the inclusion of trifloxysulfuron. While it is true that Ruegg does not serve as a blue print for anticipating the instant invention, Ruegg does make obvious the instant invention. Ruegg suggests in column 11 line 32 – column 12 line 21 the combination of trifloxysulfuron with at least one specified compound. Note that Ruegg specifically names the at least one compound which includes the instant compounds glufosinate, sethoxydim and clethodim. This teaching by Ruegg allows for trifloxysulfuron to be combined with compounds glufosinate, sethoxydim and/or clethodim. The combinations of ingredients are not resulting from a mere picking and choosing since the Ruegg specifically names the compounds, which can be combined trifloxysulfuron. In addition it is obvious to combine substances of the same utility with the expectation of obtaining at least an additive effect. Note that a prior art reference does not have to recite all the possible combinations of ingredients in order to make an invention obvious.

Ruegg names glufosinate , metolachlor, pyriithobac, sethoxydim and clethodim, but only in the context of combination with a trifloxysulfuron. This is no indication that combination of these named herbicides with one another in the absence of trifluoxysulfuron would provide unexpected results against harmful plants. The Examiner's position remains that all named herbicides are well known; therefore, it would have been obvious to combine the named herbicides with the expectation of creating final combinations that would be herbicidal.

Applicants provide no unexpected results for the combination of known herbicide, bispyribac, sethoxydim or clethodim, with glufosinate(ammonium), which is also a known herbicide.

Claim Objection

Claims 14,15,22,23,48,49,51,52 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim. The specification at pages 31-35 provides unexpected results for an invention comprising glufosinate plus metolachlor, or pyriithobac.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
